THE MODERN MAORI QUARTET

NGĀ BRO E WHĀ

Four Māori men come together from different corners of Aotearoa and prepare to take a journey of a lifetime.

Come and delve into our country's past and present with this group of insanely talented performers. Weaving a rich tapestry that draws from local music and stories, as well as integrating international hits throughout the ages, Ngā Bro E Whā is 'The Modern Māori Quartet's' premiere piece of multi-medium theatre and music unique to Aotearoa.

'The Modern Māori Quartet' is made up of: Maaka Pohatu (Two Little Boys), Matariki Whatarau (Go Girls), Matu Ngaropo (Korero Mai) and James Tito (Sydney Bridge Upside Down) - all graduates from Toi Whakaari: NZ Drama School.

Nga Bro E Whā is produced by Teresa Brown of 'Boss', directed by Rachel House (The Maori Troilus and Cressida & Hui), with musical direction by Tama Waipara (Fill Up The Silence).

"My favourites...four sharp dressed men in suits and skinny ties singing harmonies and sending themselves and the music up just ever so..."

- Radio NZ review of Everything is Ka Pai show at Auckland Arts Festival 2013.

"Top class...inspiring kaupapa"

- Rawiri Paratene NZOM
